SECTION 1

Count vs. Non-Count Nouns

Can you count it? Can you say ONE, TWO, THREE?

Count vs. Non-Count Nouns

COUNT NOUNS

You can count them: one egg, two eggs, three sandwiches.

egg, tomato, cookie, bottle, sandwich, apple, cup, plate, hamburger, banana, glass, meal

NON-COUNT NOUNS

You CANNOT count them: not "one bread," not "two sugars."

bread, cheese, pasta, tea, juice, rice, water, ice cream, sugar, coffee, milk, meat

The Trick

If you can put A or AN before it, it's countable: AN egg, A sandwich.

If you can't, it's non-count: not A bread, not A water.

Examples: Count vs. Non-Count

Seeing the difference in real sentences:

Count

I have three apples. Can I have a sandwich, please?

Non-count

I have some bread. There isn't any milk.

Both together

I'd like a coffee and two cookies, please.

Tricky one

"Egg" is count (an egg), but "rice" is non-count (some rice).

At a store

We need some sugar, two bottles of water, and an apple.

SECTION 2

Some / Any

Both mean "algunos / algo de" — used in different situations.

Some / Any

SOME

Affirmative sentences

- I have some bread.
- She wants some coffee.
- We need some eggs.
- There is some juice in the fridge.

ANY

Negative sentences and questions

- I don't have any bread.
- She doesn't want any coffee.
- Do you have any eggs?
- Is there any juice?

Special Case

Use SOME in questions when offering or requesting politely: "Would you like SOME coffee?" "Can I have SOME water?"

Examples: Some / Any in Action

Different real-life situations:

At home

We have some rice, but we don't have any beans.

Shopping

Do you have any apples today? — Yes, we have some.

Cooking

I need some sugar and some eggs for this recipe.

At a cafe

Would you like some milk in your coffee?

Checking the fridge

Is there any juice? — No, there isn't any. There's some water.

SECTION 3

How Much / How Many

Asking about quantity depends on countable or not.

How Much / How Many

HOW MANY + count noun

How many eggs do you need?

-> I need two eggs.

How many sandwiches do you want?

-> I'd like one sandwich, please.

How many people are at the table?

-> There are four people.

HOW MUCH + non-count noun

How much coffee do you drink?

-> I drink two cups a day.

How much sugar do you want?

-> Just a little, please.

How much bread do we need?

-> We need half a loaf.

Price Question

Use HOW MUCH for prices, even though you could count dollars: "How much IS the sandwich?" — "It's three dollars fifty."

Examples: How Much / How Many

Asking about quantity in real situations:

Ordering food

How many tacos do you want? — I'd like three, please.

Cooking

How much rice do we need? — About two cups.

At a party

How many people are coming? — About twenty.

Shopping

How much milk should I buy? — One liter is enough.

Price

How much is the coffee? — It's a dollar fifty.

SECTION 4

Have for Meals + Would Like

Two important structures for talking about food.

Have for Meals + Would Like

HAVE — for food and meals

HAVE = tener / tomar — both work. I/You/We/They = HAVE; He/She/It = HAS.

- I have breakfast at seven.
- She has a sandwich for lunch.
- We have coffee in the morning.
- They have a salad.

WOULD LIKE — polite requests

I'd like = I would like — same, more casual. More polite than WANT.

- I'd like some tea, please.
- Would you like a menu?
- What would you like for dinner?
- She'd like some coffee, please.

WANT vs. WOULD LIKE

"I want coffee." — direct, informal. OK with friends.

"I'd like some coffee, please." — polite, formal. Use in restaurants and with strangers!

Examples: Have + Would Like

Meals, and polite requests, in context:

Daily routine

I have breakfast at seven and lunch at noon.

At a restaurant

I'd like the chicken, please. And a water, thank you.

Offering

Would you like some dessert?

With friends (informal)

I want pizza tonight! Do you want some too?

Very polite

Excuse me, could I have the menu, please? I'd like to order.

A Coffee or Some Coffee?

The serving rule — non-count nouns CAN become countable.

Normally coffee, tea, salad, ice cream are NON-COUNT. But when you mean ONE SERVING — use A or AN.

SOME + noun	A/AN + noun	What it means
some coffee	a coffee	= a cup of coffee
some tea	a tea	= a cup of tea
some salad	a salad	= a plate of salad
some ice cream	an ice cream	= an individual serving
some water	a water	= a glass of water

At the restaurant: "Can I have a coffee and a salad, please?" — a coffee = one cup, a salad = one plate.

SECTION 5

Pronunciation

Food words that are tricky to say. Sound it out!

Pronunciation: Food Words

cheese

/tʃi:z/

CH like "choose." Long EE. Z at the end — buzz it. CHEEZ.

sandwich

/'sændwɪtʃ/

SAND-witch. Two syllables. Not "sandweech."

vegetables

/'vedʒtəbəlz/

VEJ-ta-buls. 3 syllables, not 4. Not "ve-ge-ta-bles."

juice

/dʒu:s/

J sounds like DZH — softer than Spanish J. Long OO.

sugar

/'ʃʊgər/

Starts with SH, not S! SHOO-ger. Hard G.

would like

/wʊd laɪk/

WOOD like. The L in "would" is silent.

SECTION 6

Listening

Maya's Kitchen — listen carefully, then answer.

Listening: Maya's Kitchen

My name is Maya. I love cooking. Every morning, I have a coffee and some toast for breakfast. I don't eat any meat — I'm vegetarian. For lunch, I have some rice and vegetables. I don't drink any soda; I drink water or juice. On Saturdays, I go to the market. I buy some tomatoes, some cheese, and an apple. I don't buy much sugar — I don't like sweet food. Tonight, I'd like to try a new recipe. I'm having pasta with vegetables for dinner.

1. What does Maya have for breakfast?
2. Does she eat meat?
3. What does she have for lunch?
4. Does she drink a lot of soda?
5. What would she like to do tonight?

Listening: Answers

1. She has a coffee and some toast.

2. No, she doesn't. She's vegetarian.

3. She has some rice and vegetables.

4. No, she doesn't drink any soda.

5. She'd like to try a new recipe — pasta with vegetables.

SECTION 7

Practice

Say It in English, Sentence Scramble, and the Restaurant Dialogue.

Say It in English!

Translate each sentence — type it in the chat, everyone at the same time!

1. ¿Tienes algo de pan?

2. Me gustaría un café, por favor.

3. No hay leche.

4. ¿Cuánta azúcar necesitas?

5. ¿Cuántos huevos quieres?

6. ¿Te gustaría un poco de té?

No hay pistas de estructura — construyan la oración completa desde cero. Eso es lo que más ayuda.
